At a campaign rally in North Carolina Saturday, President Donald Trump told attendees they'll never see or hear from him again if he loses the election to Joe Biden.

"If I lose to him, I don't know what I'm going to do. I will never speak to you again, " Trump told supporters at a rally in North Carolina.

In a June interview, Trump refused to say whether he would accept the results of the 2020 election if he did not emerge the winner.

Trump made similar remarks in 2016 when he rivaled Hillary Clinton for the presidency: "I don't think I'm going to lose, but if I do, I don't think you're ever going to see me again, folks, " Trump said. "I think I'll go to Turnberry and play golf or something. "President Donald Trump told supporters Saturday night that he will never speak to them again if he loses the election in November.

Speaking at a campaign rally in Fayetteville, North Carolina, Trump railed against rival Joe Biden, calling him "the worst candidate in the history of presidential politics. "

"If I lose to him, I don't know what I'm going to do. I will never speak to you again, " Trump told the attendees at the rally. "You'll never see me again. "

Neither the Trump nor Biden campaign immediately responded to a request for comment from Business Insider. Trump made similar remarks in 2016 when he rivaled Hillary Clinton for the presidency.

"I don't think I'm going to lose, but if I do, I don't think you're ever going to see me again, folks, " Trump said at a Maryland rally in April 2016. "I think I'll go to Turnberry and play golf or something. ".
