Andy Reid is not happy with the Texans -- not just because the Chiefs lost to them Sunday, but because Reid says a Texans player intentionally flopped to draw a flag during a crucial play.

With under three minutes to go in the fourth quarter and with the Chiefs down by 10 points, returner Tyreek Hill scored a touchdown on a 105-yard return. Suddenly, the Chiefs were within striking distance, though they were still lacking timeouts.

A holding call on Steven Nelson for blocking Charles James (of Hard Knocks fame) negated that touchdown, however. According to Reid, James flopped on the play to draw the flag.

" knew he was outflanked, so he literally flopped," Reid said, per the Kansas City Chiefs Outlet Star. "Nelson put his hands out, put him down and the kid just jumped into his body. Obviously from the officials' perspective it didn't look like that."

Reid's expression in the moment really says it all.
