Titleist AP2 716 Steel Irons So has Thomas' ceiling -- the most he could possibly accomplish in his career -- changed for me? I guess it has a bit. But the question also begged a larger question which is, "what is the ceiling for the best young golfers in the world right now?"

Titleist AP2 716 Graphite Irons McIlroy wins at about a 10 percent clip on Tour, but he only plays 16-18 events a year. Let's say he does that for the next 12 years. That would mean he ends up with north of 30 PGA Tour wins. He also has exactly 50 more majors to play in until he turns 40 (barring injury). His ceiling is winning probably six or seven of them (he's won four of his first 31 as a pro).

Mizuno JPX 850 Forged Steel Irons Reed has five wins but no top 10s in major championships. He is a really good (but not historically great) player. I could see him having a Hal Sutton-like career.
